1. Special Construction Bureau No. 1 (SKTB-1), operating out of the Junkers plant at Dessau, is both a fact-gathering and recruiting office. It is particularly interested in:

- Development of industry in the western zones: socialization, dismantling, destruction of armaments plants, dissolution of specific firms, etc.
- Activity at Junkers during its occupation by American forces; American interest in specific plans, sequestration of plans, and recruitment of Junkers personnel.

25X1A6a

Comment: Unless it has been shifted, the Dessau SKTB-1 falls under the nominal command of the Soviet Ministry for Aircraft Construction.

2. Buyers and commercial representatives who travel in the western zone are employed to gather the above information. Some have been interrogated upon their return to the Russian Zone, although they may not have been in Soviet employ; others are known to have been refused inter-zonal passes until they agreed to pick up such information during their trips. Source believes that these facts are being gathered to build up the case for Soviet occupation policy.

3. The Russians are still interested in all former aircraft industry specialists, including those resident in other zones. It is the task of SKTB-1 to hunt out all former Junkers personnel and to try to persuade them to contract for work in the USSR.

4. Up to the present time, the families of Junkers workers deported to Russia have received no aid, although they had been promised that money would be remitted to them from that country. The supervisory council of Junkers has been considering the temporary support of these families through Junkers charitable funds.
